Biography

Francis Boag was born in Dundee in 1948 and studied at Duncan of Jordanstone College of Art in the late sixties where his tutors included the celebrated painters Alberto Morrocco and David McClure.

Boag continued to develop his painting throughout a successful teaching career, which culminated in him being appointed head of Art at Aberdeen Grammar School in 1989. It was his move to the North East which signalled a major change of direction in his work.

Initially drawing his inspiration from the colour and texture found within the surrounding landscape, Boag started to exhibit widely from 1995 and quickly built a reputation as one of Scotland's most exciting and original contemporary landscape painters.

Boag now exhibits widely throughout the UK and attracts attention from an international market, and his subject matter while remaining predominantly Scottish inspired, has developed to embrace the colour and splendour of Mediterranean subjects and wherever his travels may take him.
